Mainpine® Bolsters Management Team and Moves into New Corporate Headquarters Intelligent Fax Hardware Manufacturer Ramps Up to Address Rapidly Growing Business

WILSONVILLE, Oregon — May 22, 2006 — Mainpine® Inc., an innovator in the global intelligent fax hardware arena, announced today it has added two new employees to its management team to head its marketing and support/quality assurance departments. In conjunction, Mainpine announced it has relocated its North American headquarters to Wilsonville, Oregon, also known as the Silicon Forest of the Pacific Northwest. The move will accommodate the company's continued growth.

Making the announcement was Mainpine President and CEO Lloyd Johnson, formerly founder and vice president of CommercePath, Inc. (acquired by AVT, Inc. in 1997). Johnson joined Mainpine in March 2006. New hires include Kristin Roche, Mainpine's Director of Marketing and Derrek Sypert, Technical Support and Quality Assurance Manager. Both have over fifteen years of experience working for technology companies, most recently at FaxBack, a network fax software company.

The new offices feature a state-of-the-art testing facility for fax ISVs (Independent Software Vendors) to accurately gauge compatibility, reliability, performance and speed of their fax applications with Mainpine's intelligent fax boards across a range of conditions.

"It's an exciting time at Mainpine as we are experiencing significant growth in our core business," said Lloyd Johnson, president and CEO at Mainpine, Inc. "Having a new site with ample room for growth and adding Derrek and Kristin to our management team allows us to focus on building the Mainpine brand as well as driving demand for our intelligent fax hardware product line."
